The team is currently responsible for nearly 800 properties which are managed in-house and we are involved in a further 1,800 properties managed by alternative agents.

We are ideally looking for somebody who sets themselves apart from the standard Property Manager/Block Manager and presents a knowledge base that extends to the property sector as a whole. Your role will involve:

- Acting on behalf of one of the UK's largest freeholders.
- Working as part of a small team delivering the reactive management of a large and varied portfolio of residential blocks located across the UK.
- Dealing with queries both internally and from external sources on a day to day basis by phone, email and letter.

- Ensuring health and safety and legislative compliance of the managed portfolio. Co-ordinating health and safety reports and acting upon the findings contained within those reports.
- Co-ordinating major works projects, the serving of statutory notices, acting as principal designer on smaller scale works and liaising with surveyors on larger schemes.
- Providing guidance on incoming Right to Manage claims and working closely with our legal team to see these through to completion.
- On occasion undertake meetings with residents with a view to preventing RTM/ enfranchisement claims.
- Conducting site visits where necessary to meet with leaseholders, contractors or surveyors and to inspect works or repairs.
- Other daily duties involve dealing with incoming phone calls (as part of a team) and assisting in the general running and administration of the company.
- Continued IRPM/ ARMA development will be offered by the company to ensure the employee has a strong understanding of the surrounding legislative and contractual influences when managing property.

Whilst we're looking for someone with experience, this could be at a junior level. If you're currently working as an Assistant Property Manager or Property Manager with only a few years' experience – we can help you to grow and develop in your career and will provide you with on the job training!

Benefits

The company prides itself on staff welfare and operates an incentive scheme where staff will obtain a financial bonus if exceptional tasks or projects are completed.
